Brett:
Have we re-visited the policy yet on allowing presidential items to be used in charity auctions?
thank you sir (!)

Subject: Request for Charity Auction in Louisville

Coddy,

The wife of one of our clients is involved in the annual fundraiser for a charity in which she is active. As a part of their event in late January they will have a silent auction. Is there any chance of an autographed photo of the President or some Presidential trinket that can be acquired for them?

I know there are legal and policy issues surrounding the use of the President's image and signature, but raising funds for faith-based charities would seem to be a good exception to make. I have included a description of the organization below.

Maryhurst is a Non Profit organization based in Louisville that takes in wayward girls and boys and gets them through to their 18th birthday - adoption, but more frequently house and supervised on site care is the solution - its a pay me now or pay me later proposition for contributors/taxpayers.

Maryhurst was established about 50 years ago and has a number of success stories - originally started by nuns, its progressed into a non denominational organization that still embraces some Catholic tenets...its a great organization.

Thanks, as always, for your assistance.

Charlie Grizzle
