I met with Greg Jenkins on Thursday to try to hammer out more of the details about how the White House advance staff will interact with the campaign advance staff.

In addition the the press credentialing question, there were a couple of others that grew out of the meeting for you to consider:

1)Equipment: Do we need to send a campaign laptop out on the road with our Staff leads or can they use White House equipment and email to communicate back and forth with the White House advance staff? If so determined, then do we need to have our own telephone lines dropped for political computers, as well -- or reimburse whca for a phone line for the computer?

2) As we discussed, the campaign will be hiring advance staff that Greg Jenkins and his staff will direct for political trips. Greg wanted to know if it is permissable for these campaign staffers to help out on official travel as well.

Thanks for your help.
