TOP ITEMS
FOR THE WEEK OF AUGUST 16, 2004

- DHS Senior Officials Exercise in Washington, D.C.
On August 19, the Office of State and Local Government Coordination and Preparedness will conduct the fourth DHS Senior Officials Exercise in Washington, D.C. The exercise is designed for DHS principals, deputies, or senior department management to examine the Homeland Security Advisory System and focus on the processes, procedures, protective measures, and the impact associated with elevating the threat level to “Red.” The exercise will employ two scenarios that address chemical and improvised explosive device attacks. The exercise is closed to press.
- Changes to the Hospital Outpatient Prospective Payment System.
On August 16, the Federal Register will publish a proposed rule titled, “Medicare Program; Proposed Changes to the Hospital Outpatient Prospective Payment System and Calendar Year 2005 Payment Rates.” This proposed rule updates the prospective payment system used by Medicare to pay hospital outpatient services. The rule provides for an increase in Medicare payments to hospitals for outpatient services of 4.6 percent, or $864 million. The rule also implements provisions of the Medicare Modernization Act of 2003, including payment for an initial preventative physical examination and several policy changes. Hospitals are expected to react favorably to the rules since payments increase for every category of hospital.
- Potential Limits on Chicago O’Hare Flights to Reduce Delays.
As early as August 17, the Department may issue an order establishing a cap on the number of flights into O’Hare International Airport in Chicago, Illinois, in an effort to alleviate severe flight delays. Significant on-time performance problems caused by over-scheduling are causing ripple effects throughout the entire civil aviation system. Discussions between the Department and airlines serving the airport are ongoing. A related public comment period ends on August 13.
- Department to Award $10 Million to Nine New Development Projects.
This week, the Department will announce the selection of nine projects totaling $10 million to develop the U.S. oil and gas resources and protect the environment. The new projects will address issues that currently restrict domestic oil and gas production, support development of new technologies, and explore more efficient and environmentally responsible oil and gas production. The nine projects concentrate on two primary areas – access to resources on Federal lands and the management of produced water, which is the largest waste stream associated with oil and gas production.
- Bureau Of Land Management (BLM) to Act on Otero Mesa Leasing Decision.
On August 17, the BLM will announce its plan to allow fluid mineral leasing in southeastern New Mexico. This decision culminates a six-year planning process. While opening new areas for exploration, the plan includes significant environmental protections. Of the entire two million acre planning area, there can be a maximum of only 1,600 acres of surface disturbance at any given time resulting from energy development activity. Governor Richardson (D) and environmental groups strongly oppose this action.

- Release of Study Concluding Huge Natural Gas Potential in San Juan Basin.
This week, the Department will release a five-year study, which concludes that optimal infill drilling in the San Juan Basin may increase gas recovery from 23 to 46 percent and could prove to be a key factor in meeting future U.S. energy needs. Research illustrates that approximately 7.8 trillion cubic feet of natural gas might be recovered from the Mesaverde producing area, depending on factors like reservoir conditions. Infill drilling increases the density of wells and allows additional wells to be drilled within a developed field.

The 2003 listing will indicate that the number of fish advisories increased by ten percent compared to 2002. Due to the projected life of the Hubble's batteries, the robot must reach the observatory before 2009. Should the batteries fail before this time, the repair mission would become strictly a de-orbit mission. While NASA is doing nothing to preclude a Shuttle servicing mission to Hubble, it nonetheless still appears to be too difficult to satisfy the CAIB requirements. Next summer, external experts will look at the final design of the mission to determine whether the design as presented is feasible, within reasonable risk, and can be accomplished within budget and on schedule. However, an amendment to the FY 2005 budget will be required, and the Administrator will decide within the next few weeks how to proceed.

On August 20, the Institute of Medicine (IOM), a part of the National Academy of Sciences, will release an update to its Year 2000 review of the long-term health effects from exposure to low doses of the chemical warfare agent sarin. For its update, the IOM examined all new scientific literature published since its 2000 report.
