STATE ISSUES

MEXICAN PRESIDENT VINCENTE FOX

Earlier this month, Mexican President Vincente Fox toured Arizona, New Mexico, and Texas. His trip involved high-level immigration and trade talks with political and business leaders, and meetings with members of Mexican-American communities.

HEALTHY FORESTS

Last week, Governor Janet Napolitano said she supports the U.S. Senate version of the healthy forests bill. The bill would back the widespread thinning of small trees and brush to reduce fuel for wildfires. The Governor has received pressure from Congressmen J.D. Hayworth (R, AZ-05) and Jeff Flake (R, AZ-06) to influence her party cohorts in Congress to help pass the measure. You spoke at a healthy forest event in Arizona on August 11, 2003.

ARIZONA BRIEFING

UNDOCUMENTED IMMIGRATION

Arizona is emerging as a battleground for illegal immigration issues. Senator McCain, Congressman Flake, and Congressman Jim Kolbe (R, AZ-08) have introduced the Border Security and Immigration Improvement Act. The bill would allow millions of foreigners, including undocumented immigrants already in the United States, to live and work in this country with temporary visas and would grant permanent residency to undocumented workers who have been here for several years.

At the other end of the spectrum, a grassroots group backed by two Republican State lawmakers has launched Protect Arizona Now. Their initiative would ban spending State and local tax money on undocumented immigrants and would require State and local governments to verify the legal status of anyone seeking public services and turn over undocumented immigrants to immigration officials.

Arizona's congressional delegation and the Arizona Republican Party oppose Protect Arizona Now. Supporters of the measure need to collect 122,612 signatures to place the issue on the 2004 ballot. A November poll of registered voters revealed that 59 percent of Arizonans support a guest-worker program to deal with illegal immigration and 28 percent were opposed.⁵

Undocumented Deaths

As of September 30, the undocumented-immigrant death toll reached 151 (due mostly to dehydration in the desert), making this year the deadliest in Arizona. In the previous fiscal year, 145 immigrant deaths were reported in the State.

Undocumented Driver's License

Earlier this year, Congressman Flake introduced a bill (H.R. 3461) that would limit the abilities of states to give driver's licenses to undocumented immigrants. This measure would bar Federal agencies from accepting state driver's licenses as valid ID unless the state has stringent identification requirements. The bill also requires states that issue licenses to foreigners to have those licenses expire at the end of that individual's authorized stay in the United States. The bill has been referred to the Government Reform Committee.

ELECTION FUNDING AMENDMENT

On September 2, a group called "No Taxpayer Money for Politicians" filed an initiative for the 2004 ballot that would amend the Arizona Constitution to ban the use of Clean

Elections money to fund politicians' campaigns. Instead, taxpayer dollars now used for political races would be used to fund public education and health care for seniors.

In 2002, the Clean Elections system distributed $13 million in public money to hundreds of statewide and legislative candidates. Clean Elections supporters are confident Arizona will continue to support publicly financed elections and point to increased voter turnout and more Hispanic and female candidates as successes. Many candidates took advantage of the law during the 2002 elections, including 30 of 39 statewide candidates and 110 of 221 legislative candidates.
